CURRENT STATISTICS

Review of Urban Affairs

A set of six papers examines the intersectional identities and informal sets of actors and associations, not only in terms of the socio-spatial exclusions they produce or mediate but, more importantly, to examine how particular individuals and groups in specific and contingent social contexts are able to organise, mobilise, and assert their identity in claiming their right to the city. page 28 onwards

Regulating AI in India

India should be proactive in preparing for artificial intelligence regulation instead of passively waiting for a world-governing body to provide guidance. page 10

BRICS and the Global South

BRICS now aims to include more diverse and relevant voices, raising the question of whether this forum has achieved the goals that it had established for itself. page 15

Performing Queerness

To look for queer possibilities in Hindi films, we need to identify instances that disrupt dominant heterosexual narratives. page 80

1. Grounds of Self-respect

A great sporting culture can only flourish in an environment that prioritises safety and democratisation.

Editorial
